

Olivia is a local realtor in the metro Denver area, single mom and fashion blogger. She is very passionate about supporting local businesses and seeking out opportunities to be more involved in her Denver community. She has a big heart for children who are in need. Olivia has a deep desire to care for children to the best of her abilities. In her business, she aims to guide others to a purpose-driven life where they can not only achieve financial freedom and stability through home ownership, but also where they can feel a sense of tranquility and inspiration to connect with their families and their communities in a meaningful way.