

Rachel is involved in National Jewish Health because her father, David Engleberg, has served on the Board of Directors for 30 years, and she would like to continue his legacy. She is proud to support the mission of National Jewish Health in honor of her mother, who recently passed from interstitial lung disease.