

Joseph Pollicino, Jr., to Receive National Jewish Health Humanitarian Award at 35th Annual Financial

FEBRUARY 14, 2012

DENVER — Leaders of New York's financial industries will gather on March 13 to honor Joseph Pollicino Jr., Senior Vice President and Regional Manager of Wells Fargo Bank, NA, at the 35th annual Financial Industries Dinner. The event at the New York Hilton benefits the nation's #1 respiratory hospital, National Jewish Health.

Pollicino will accept the prestigious Humanitarian Award for his significant civic and charitable contributions and leadership in his industry. He is a board member and past president of the Catholic Big Sisters and Big Brothers of New York and past president of the Plandome Civic Association and Plandome Country Club. He serves on the board of advisors of the Georgetown University Wall Street Alliance and on local youth sports boards for basketball, soccer and baseball.

One of the most prestigious philanthropic events for New York's financial industry, the Financial Industries Dinner began in 1977, spearheaded by the late New York banker and philanthropist Lou Moskowitz. Over the years, the Financial Industries Dinner has raised nearly $17 million for National Jewish Health.

The 2012 Financial Industries Dinner is chaired by FTI Consulting's Abby E. Parsonnet. Honorary Chairman is Barry A. Kastner, Keltic Financial Services. Dinner Treasurer is Kevin J. Gillespie, Wells Fargo Capital Finance.

Dinner Committee Vice Chairmen are Glenn Autorino, GE Capital Markets Inc.; Daniel Batterman, Hahn & Hessen LLP; Richard A. Bernstein, P & E Capital, Inc.; Mitchell M. Brand, Otterbourg, Steindler, Houston & Rosen PC; William D. Brewer, Winston & Strawn LLP; Milton Cooper, Kimco Realty Corp.; Carl Giordano, TD Bank NA; Jonathan Helfat, Otterbourg, Steindler, Houston & Rosen PC; Daniel J.
